

Tym read Engineering at Cambridge and has an MSc from Imperial College, London. He worked for a few years in scientific research and mathematical modelling of the environment before changing course, becoming a Chartered Accountant with Coopers & Lybrand in the Thames Valley. He then moved into the City where he became a Director of Finance and Control at two major European banks. He has also set up and run a property renovation business. He is now retired and living in Mathon.